The relevant institution, enterprise or non-governmental organisation shall be obliged to provide the Centre for Gender Equality with the information and materials it considers necessary to reveal the facts of the case. If the parties concerned do not comply with this request by the Centre for Gender Equality within a reasonable time limit, the Centre may decide that they are to pay per diem fines until the information and materials have been provided. If the Centre for Gender Equality considers that the information and materials in question further substantiate the suspicion that a violation of this Act has taken place, it shall request the Gender Equality Complaints Committee to examine the matter, and consequently inform the institution, enterprise or non-governmental organisation concerned in writing of its decision to do so.

The Centre for Gender Equality shall, at the request of the plaintiff, take steps to ensure that the rulings of the Gender Equality Complaints Committee are enforced as appropriate. When a party against whom a ruling of the Gender Equality Complaints Committee is directed fails to comply with it, the Centre for Gender Equality may instruct the party concerned to make satisfactory remedial measures in accordance with the ruling within a reasonable time limit. If the party against whom the ruling is directed fails to comply with the instructions of the Centre for Gender Equality, the Centre may decide that the party is to pay per diem fines until it complies with the instructions.

The employees of the Centre for Gender Equality may not use their position to obtain information or materials other than those that are necessary, or may be necessary, for the purposes of monitoring under paragraph 5. Furthermore, they may not provide or deliver to others than the parties to the case and the Gender Equality Complaints Committee any information or materials gathered for the purposes of monitoring under paragraph 5 that they may have become aware of in connection with their work on resolving disputes under item k of paragraph 3, or follow-up measures to ensure compliance with rulings by the Gender Equality Complaints Committee under paragraph 6.

When determining the amount of per diem fines, factors including the number of employees of the enterprise, institution or non-governmental organisation and the scope of the business involved shall be taken into account.

Per diem fines shall accrue to the Treasury.

The party to whom the instructions of the Centre for Gender Equality are addressed under this provision may appeal to the Minister of Social Affairs and Social Security against the Centre for Gender Equality's decision. A decision to impose per diem fines under paragraph 6 shall be cancelled if the ruling of the Gender Equality Complaints Committee is referred to the courts.

Decisions by the Centre for Gender Equality to impose per diem fines may be enforced by attachment. Appeals lodged with the Minister of Social Affairs and Social Security or the institution of proceedings before the ordinary courts shall defer enforcement action.

Article 5

The Gender Equality Complaints Committee.

The Minister of Social Affairs and Social Security shall appoint three members of the Gender Equality Complaints Committee for periods of three years at a time in accordance with nominations by the Supreme Court. They shall all be qualified lawyers, and at least one of them shall have expert knowledge of gender equality issues. The chairman and vice-chairman shall meet the conditions set for serving as a district court judge. Alternates shall be appointed in the same way. The Committee may summon experts to give it advice and assistance if it deems necessary.

The task of the Gender Equality Complaints Committee shall be to examine cases and to deliver a ruling in writing on whether provisions of this Act have been violated. The Committee's rulings may not be referred to a higher authority.

In cases that may be expected to influence policy on the labour market as a whole, the Committee shall seek comments from the national federations of workers and employers before delivering its ruling.

The rulings of the Complaints Committee shall be binding for the parties to each case. The parties may refer the Committee's rulings to the courts. At the request of a party, the Committee may deliver a ruling deferring the legal effect of its own ruling if it deems it reasonable. A request to this effect shall be presented not later than ten days after the publication of the ruling. The deferral of the legal effects of a ruling shall be subject to the condition that the party to the case will refer the matter to the courts within thirty days of the publication of the ruling deferring the legal effects, and will then request that it receives swift treatment. If a request for swift treatment is rejected, then the case shall be litigated as quickly as possible after the rejection is announced, and not later than thirty days following the judge's rejection. The deferral of the legal effects of a ruling shall expire if the matter is not referred to the courts within thirty days of the publication of the ruling deferring the legal effects, or if no action is instituted within thirty days of the rejection by a judge of the request for speedy treatment. If a case concerning a Committee's ruling is litigated, the Committee may defer its treatment of comparable pending cases until judgment has been delivered in the case.

The Gender Equality Complaints Committee may decide that the party against whom the complaint is directed is to pay the plaintiff the costs of bringing the complaint before the Complaints Committee, providing that the Committee's conclusion is in the plaintiff's favour.

If a ruling of the Gender Equality Complaints Committee is in the plaintiff's favour but the respondent does not accept the Complaints Committee's ruling and brings an action to have it annulled by the courts, the plaintiff's legal costs, both at the district court and Supreme Court level, shall be paid by the Treasury.

If the Gender Equality Complaints Committee deems a complaint evidently unfounded, the Committee may order the plaintiff to pay the respondents' legal costs. An attachment may be made, without a prior court judgement, to secure the payment of legal costs.

The Complaints Committee shall publish its rulings.

Costs of the Committee's activities shall be paid by the State Treasury. The Minister of Social Affairs and Social Security may, by means of a regulation, set further provisions on the procedures of the Complaints Committee and its office management.

Article 6

Procedure before the Gender Equality Complaints Committee.

Individuals, enterprises, institutions and non-governmental organisations, either in their own name or on behalf of their members who consider that they are the victims of violations of this Act, may submit their case to the Gender Equality Complaints Committee.

The Centre for Gender Equality may request that the Gender Equality Complaints Committee examine a case cf. paragraph 5 of Article 4.

Cases shall be submitted to the Complaints Committee in writing within six months of the date when the alleged violation of this Act was known, or from the time when a situation regarded as an infringement of this Act came to an end, or from the time when the person concerned became aware of the alleged violation. If reasoning is sought on the basis of the provisions of the Administrative Procedure Act, the period for submission shall be reckoned from the time that the reasoning has been obtained. In special circumstances, the Complaints Committee may decide to examine a case even though the time limit defined above has passed, though in no case exceeding one year. An application shall be considered as timely if the pertaining letter is received by the Committee, or posted, before the time limit.

The Complaints Committee may, after consulting the plaintiff, send the case to the Centre for Gender Equality for mediation.

The Committee shall deliver its rulings at the earliest opportunity, and no later than three months after receiving the case.

Procedure before the Complaints Committee shall, as a rule, be in writing; however, the Committee may summon the parties or their representatives to hearings. In other respects, the Committee's procedure shall be in accordance with the Administrative Procedure Act and further regulations issued by the Minister after receiving proposals from the Committee.

Article 7

Gathering of information before the Complaints Committee.

The Gender Equality Complaints Committee shall ensure that a party to a case has the opportunity to express himself or herself regarding the matter at issue before the Committee delivers its ruling, providing that the Committee considers that neither the party's position nor the reasons for it are presented in the evidence.

The Gender Equality Complaints Committee may, at the request of the opposite party, demand a party to present materials which the Committee considers could have an influence on the resolution of the case.

The Gender Equality Complaints Committee may demand further evidence from the parties if it deems the facts inconclusive.

If evidence is presented to the Gender Equality Complaints Committee concerning wages, other terms of employment or entitlements of individuals, the Complaints Committee shall inform the party concerned that this information has been submitted to the Committee. Such information shall be treated in confidence.

This shall also apply to the boards of publicly-owned limited companies and enterprises in which the state or a municipality is the majority owner.

When nominations are made to national and local government committees, councils and boards, a man and a woman shall be nominated. The nominating party may deviate from the condition of the first sentence when, in consequence of objective circumstances, it is not possible to nominate both a man and a woman. In such cases, the nominating party shall explain the reasons for this.

The appointing party may deviate from the condition of paragraph 1 if the exemption provided for in paragraph 2 applies.

Article 16

Analysis of statistical data.

In the compilation of official economic reports on individuals, and in canvassing interviews and opinion surveys, a distinction shall be drawn between the sexes in the collection of data, data processing and the publication of information unless special circumstances, e.g. the protection of personal privacy, argue against doing so.

Article 17

Gender mainstreaming.

Gender mainstreaming shall be observed in all policy-making and planning on the part of the ministries and the public institutions operating under their realm. The same shall apply, as appropriate, to all decision-making within ministries and institutions.

Article 18

The labour market.

Employers and trade unions shall work deliberately to bring women and men on an equal footing on the labour market. Employers shall work specifically to put women and men on an equal footing within their enterprise or institution and to take steps to avoid jobs being classified as specifically women's or men's jobs. Particular emphasis shall be placed on achieving equal representation of women and men in managerial and influential positions.

Enterprises and institutions with more than 25 employees, on average over the year, shall set themselves a gender equality programme or mainstream gender equality perspectives into their personnel policy. This shall specifically include, i.e., a statement of aims, with a plan of how they are to be achieved in order to guarantee the employees the rights set forth in Articles 19-22. Gender equality programmes and gender equality perspectives in personnel policies shall be reviewed at three-year intervals.

The enterprises and institutions referred to in paragraph 2 shall provide the Centre for Gender Equality with a copy of their gender equality plan, or personnel policy if they do not have a gender equality programme, together with their action plan, when the Centre for Gender Equality so requests. Furthermore, enterprises and institutions referred to in paragraph 2 shall submit a report on developments in this field, within a reasonable period, to the Centre for Gender Equality when it so requests.

In cases where an enterprise or institution referred to in paragraph 2 has not set itself a gender equality programme or mainstreamed gender equality perspectives into its personnel policy, the Centre for Gender Equality shall instruct the enterprise or institution in question to remedy the situation within a reasonable time limit. The same shall apply if the Centre for Gender Equality deems the gender equality programme of an enterprise or institution referred to in paragraph 2 to be unsatisfactory, or if gender equality perspectives have not been mainstreamed in its personnel policy with sufficient clarity.

Where an enterprise or institution referred to in paragraph 2 fails to comply with instructions given by the Centre for Gender Equality as provided for in paragraph 4, the Centre for Gender Equality may determine that the enterprise or institution in question is to pay per diem fines until it complies with the instructions. The same shall apply when an enterprise or institution neglects to provide the Centre for Gender Equality with a copy of its gender equality programme, or personnel policy if it has no gender equality programme, and its plan of action, when the Centre for Gender Equality so requests, or refuses to give the Centre for Gender Equality a report on developments in this field (cf. paragraph 3). Per diem fines shall accrue to the Treasury.

The party to whom the instructions of the Centre for Gender Equality are addressed under this provision may appeal to the Minister of Social Affairs and Social Security against the Centre for Gender Equality's decision.

Decisions by the Centre for Gender Equality to impose per diem fines may be enforced by attachment. Appeals lodged with the Minister of Social Affairs and Social Security or litigation before the ordinary courts shall defer enforcement action.

Amongst other things, such measures shall be aimed at increasing flexibility in the organization of work and working hours in such a way as to take account of both workers' family circumstances and the needs of the labour market, including facilitating the return of employees to work following maternity/paternity or parental leave or leave from work due to pressing and unavoidable family circumstances.

Article 22

Gender-based harassment and sexual harassment.

Employers and the directors of institutions and non-governmental organisations shall take special measures to protect employees, students and clients from gender-based or sexual harassment in the workplace, in institutions, in their work for, or the functions of, their societies, or in schools.

If a superior is charged with alleged gender-based or sexual harassment, he or she shall be non-competent to take decisions regarding the working conditions of the plaintiff during the examination of the case, and the next superior shall take such decisions.

Gender mainstreaming shall be observed in all policy-making and planning in the work of the schools and educational institutions, including sports and leisure activities.

At all levels of the educational system, pupils shall receive instruction on gender equality issues in which emphasis shall be placed, amongst other things, on preparing both sexes to play an equal role in society, including work and family life.

Special consideration to women in connection with pregnancy and childbirth shall not be regarded as discrimination.

Article 25

Prohibition against discrimination regarding terms.

Employers may not discriminate between women and men in wages and other terms of employment on grounds of their gender.

It is prohibited to advertise, or publish an advertisement for, a vacant position indicating that an employee of one sex is preferred over the other. This provision shall not apply if the aim of the advertiser is to promote a more equal representation of women and men within an occupational sector, in which case this shall be stated in the advertisement. The same shall apply if there are valid reasons for advertising for a man or a woman only.

If a likelihood is adduced that, regarding engagement, assignment or appointment to a post, promotion, change of position, retraining, continuing education, (lifelong learning) vocational training, study leave, notice of termination, the working environment or employees' working conditions, individuals have been discriminated against on grounds of their gender, the taking of maternity/paternity leave or parental leave, or other circumstances relating to pregnancy and childbirth, then the employer shall demonstrate that his or her decision was based on grounds other than the individual's gender, the taking of maternity/paternity leave or parental leave, or other circumstances relating to pregnancy and childbirth.

When assessing whether the provisions of paragraph 4 have been violated, the educational qualifications, working experience, specialised knowledge or other special talents demanded in the relevant position according to law or regulations, or which must otherwise be considered as being of use in the position, shall be taken into account.

Article 27

Prohibition against dismissal, etc., in connection with a complaint or a demand for redress.

Employers may not dismiss employers for demanding redress on the basis of this Act.

Furthermore, employers shall ensure that employees are not subjected to injustice in their work, e.g. as regards job security, terms of employment or performance assessment, on the grounds of having submitted a complaint or provided information regarding gender-based or sexual harassment or sexual discrimination.

If a likelihood is adduced, that this provision has been violated, the employer shall demonstrate that the dismissal, or alleged injustice, is not based on the employee's demand for redress, complaint or provision of information regarding gender-based or sexual harassment or sexual discrimination. This shall not apply if the dismissal takes place more than one year after the employee made his/her demand for redress under this Act.

Article 28

Prohibition against discrimination in schools and educational institutions.
